Pricing and Sales
To become profitable and make this a way to make a living you need to treat this work seriously:

- Keep track of time and expenses
- Set goals for sales and have a plan for recouping your investment
- Show up and work like this is a job (because it is)

A good basic equation for figuring out the cost of each item is as follows:

\text{Cost of materials} + (\text{Time spent making work} \times \text{Your Hourly Wage})

of items made with the cost of materials and in the time above

Check out procedures and equipment

- Minimal: Use excel spreadsheet or notepad to document sales, cash box with adequate change
- Next level: Square, Venmo, or other P.O.S. that processes cards and tracks sales
- Professional: Dedicated iPad, terminal with chip reader and/or ability to accept digital payment

Consider fees for accepting cards, what forms of payments you want to accept, and how to include tax (added on to each sale or incorporated in price)

Consider packaging materials depending on your product: plastic or paper bags, bubble wrap, boxes, envelopes etc.

SALES TAX

Websites to assist with starting your business:
https://inbiz.in.gov/start-business#

When determining your pricing consider if you are going to add sales tax in addition to the price of each item or include the sales tax within each item price and calculate out the sales tax from the final sales. Most electronic P.O.S systems, such as Square, will track and calculate the sales tax.

How to Engage Possible Customers

1. Talk To Everyone
   a. You never know who the people visiting your booth are at first glance or what they are shopping for.
   b. Every person who you interact with is practice for the one who turns into a sale and helps you build confidence.

2. Greet With Enthusiasm And Sincerity
   a. When someone enters your booth be sure to acknowledge and address them.
   b. You don’t need to overdo it, but be genuine.
   c. You don’t have to talk about your work right away, you can make small talk about the weather, something they’re carrying or compliment what they’re wearing, talk about the fair itself ("making your loop around").

3. Read The Customer
   a. What does their body language tell you?
   b. Engage
      i. Are they shopping for themselves or someone else? Looking for something specific? Colors or styles they are interested in?
   c. Give them space to look and interact with your work, DON’T HOVER.

4. Tell A Story About/With Your Work
   a. You are selling a piece of yourself, so tell them about how the piece speaks of where you have been and what you do.
   b. Know what sets you apart.
   c. Find phrases unique to you and your work.
      i. Artsy elegance for your everyday
      ii. A mug for every hand
      iii. Girlie pots
      iv. Other artists
         1. Historically inaccurate drawings
5. Ask For The Sale
   a. Something as simple as, “Would you like me to hold while you continue to look,” or “Can I wrap that up for you?”
   b. Add ons: if you have something of lower value that is easier to purchase, keep some near check-out area

6. If They Want To Keep Looking...
   a. Do not hold items for an unlimited amount of time.
   b. Leave them with more than a business card that is easily lost among their things
      i. Little mini hearts
      ii. Stickers or buttons
      iii. Post card
      iv. A sign to take a picture of near a memorable piece
   c. Remind them of the uniqueness of your work and that the item they are interested in may be gone when they return

7. How To Keep Them Coming Back/Making A Collector
   a. Personal touches
   b. Social Media
   c. Email List
   d. Creating a consistent presence
